 Été 99, dont certains prétendent qu'il est le dernier avant la fin du monde. Sur les longues plages du Touquet, les enfants crient parce que la mer est froide, les mères somnolent au soleil. Et partout, dans les dunes, les bars, les digues, des histoires d'amour qui éclosent. Enivrent. Et griffent. Quatre couples, à l'âge des quatre saisons d'une vie, se rencontrent, se croisent et s'influencent sans le savoir. Ils ont 15, 35, 55 et 75 ans. Ils sont toutes nos histoires d'amour.

 Face à un christianisme actuellement très différencié, tant par ses formes et son implantation que par son ancienneté, plus ou moins longue selon les continents, Raymond Mengus recourt à l'image des quatre saisons. Empruntée aux cycles de la nature dans l'émisphère nord, cette métaphore évoque les âges, les expériences, les étapes de la vie, la naissance et le vieillissement. Appliquée au christianisme, elle peut aider à comprendre sa diversité, son évolution dans le temps, ses crises et ses formes éclatées. L'auteur estime, par exemple, que les Eglises d'Europe, vieilles de bientôt deux millénaires, sont entrées dans l'hiver. En Amérique latine, en Asie et en Afrique au sud du Sahara, on parle en revanche de jeunes Eglises. Mais est-ce que leur printemps ou leur été durera face à la sécularisation, à l'émergence de l'individu, au pluralisme religieux et aux retards qu'ont pris, là aussi, la catéchèse et la théologie pour parler le langage de l'homme moderne ? Mêlant anecdotes personnelles et raccourcis historiques, ce livre pose des questions décapantes et s'achève sur une interrogation qui attend une réponse. Y aura-t-il un nouveau printemps pour le christianisme, et à quelles conditions ?

Has Canada moved beyond the nation state into the world of the post-national? To what extent have fixed notions of Canadian nationhood been replaced by a more global, decentralized sense of identification? Is nationhood (or post-nationhood) best expressed by statelessness and exile or by belonging? Or can Canadian national identity in fact fruitfully coexist with the post-national consciousness? These are some of the issues covered by this volume, issues seen from a range of perspectives - literary, cultural, political and economic. In the literary sphere the national/post-national debate is explored both through canonical writers, such as L. M. Montgomery, Stephen Leacock, and Marie-Claire Blais, and through recent First Nations, Asian-Canadian, African-Canadian, Ukrainian-Canadian and Quebec writing. The political and economic range is equally diverse, covering such topics as immigration policy, multiculturalism, Canadian-American relations, tourist imaginings of the Canadian North, the Canadian city, and Quebec nationalism. The book brings together 27 original articles from international scholars and creative writers, offering both European and Canadian perspectives. Six articles in French focus specifically on the francophone sphere. Chine Moderne, Ou Description Historique, Géographique Et Littéraire de Ce Vaste Empire DigiCat

 Hiver, Printemps, Été et Automne sont des sœurs quadruplées, uniques et inséparables pensionnaires d'un orphelinat de province, les Écuries du Bonheur. Le jour de leur majorité, les Saisons, comme on les surnomme, apprennent par un mystérieux cheval messenger qu'elles sont les nouvelles héritières d'un surprenant domaine : un cimetière dans la ville d'Ici ! Chargé d'un lourd passé, le lieu qui tombe en ruines est source de grande convoitise de la part du maire Pierre Lachèz. Ce dernier désire que sa cité resplesdisse aux yeux du monde entier et impose, en conséquence, à tous ses citoyens une course folle et effrénée à la consommation d'énergie. Les chevaux, premières victimes, sont persécutés pour produire de l'essence pour les nouvelles voitures ayant vocation à les remplacer. Les Saisons vont être ainsi confrontées à une fabuleuse aventure qui va exhumer les secrets de leur passé pour changer le cours de leur destin et le regard qu'elles portent sur le monde. Plongez au-delà des apparences ! Bienvenue à Ici, dans le Cimetière des quatre Saisons !

In the African context, there exists the 'myth' that orality means tradition. Written and oral verbal art are often regarded as dichotomies, one excluding the other. While orature is confused with 'tradition', literature is ascribed to modernity. Furthermore, local languages are ignored and literature is equated with writing in foreign languages. The contributions in this volume take issue with such preconceptions and explore the multiple ways in which literary and oral forms interrelate and subvert each other, giving birth to new forms of artistic expression. They emphasize the local agency of the African poet and writer, which resists the global commodification of literature through the international bestseller lists of the cultural industry. The first section traces the movement from oral to written texts, which in many cases coincides with a switch from African to European languages. But as the essays in the section on "New Literary Languages" make clear, in other cases a true philological work is accomplished in the African language to create a new written and literary medium. Through the mixing of languages in the cities, such as the Sheng spoken in Kenya or the bilinguality of a writer such as Cheik Aliou Ndao (Senegal), new idioms for literary expressions evolve. The use of new media, technology or music stimulate the emergence of new genres, such as Taarab in East Africa, radio poetry in Yoruba and Hausa, or Rap in the Senegal, as is shown in the section on "Forms of New Orality." It is a great achievement of this second volume of Versions and Subversions in African Literatures that it assembles contributions by scholars from the anglophone and the francophone world and that it covers literary production in a broad spectrum of languages: English, French, Hausa, Sheng, Sotho, Spanish, Swahili, Wolof and Yoruba. Some of the authors and cultural practitioners treated in detail are: Mobolaj Adenubi, Birago Diop, Boubacar Boris Diop, David Maillu, Thomas Mofolo, Cheik Aliou Ndao, Donato Ndongo-Bidyogo, Hubert Ogunde, Shaaban Robert, Wole Soyinka, Ibrahim YaroYahaya, and S nouvo Agbota Zinsou.
